Bus, Blazer thieves arrested

by GLORIA DAVIS

Buffalo Grove Police have solved two thefts and an assault that have remained open on the Antioch Police Dept.'s books since April.

On Aug. 2, Cmdr. Gary Del Re of Buffalo Grove, following an investigation of papers found in a smashed-up Blazer that turned-up there, took Frank F. Liebe, 18, and John Phillips, 20, both of Chicago, into custody.

After questioning the two men, the commander, accompanied by Sgt. Chester Iwan of the Lake County Sheriff's Dept., then went to Chicago and arrested Evelio Rivera Jr., 20.

All three were charged in connection with the theft of the Blazer from Scott Johnson, 20, Antioch, last April, when he stopped to help what he thought was an Antioch High School bus in trouble near I-94.

The three have also been charged with the theft of the bus from the high school parking lot a short time before they allegedly stole the Blazer from Johnson.

A fourth suspect is still being sought in the two-county felony case.

A Buffalo Grove squad car crashed during the chase of the Blazer which eluded the police but was found in Buffalo Grove the day after the thefts.

At press time the three were in the process of being returned to Lake County for bond hearings.

According to Lt. Tom Fisher of the Antioch Police Dept., Antioch will charge the three with the robbery and the theft of the bus, Lake County the theft of the Blazer, and the three will face criminal damage to property charges in Buffalo Grove.

On Antioch's charges alone, bond for Rivera and Liebe will be $50,000, and for Phillips bond will be $75,000.

Antioch Drugs moves store

Another vacancy was created in Orchard Plaza Shopping Center with the closing of Antioch Drugs.

Owner William Mendrala relocated his pharmacy service to Lake Villa Pharmacy and Fountain, which he and his wife, Nancy, established last month.

Lake Villa had been without a drug store since the closing of Lake Villa Drugs on Cedar Ave. several months ago.

The new store will be operated in conjunction with the Sargar Shop and Ice Cream Parlor which the Medralas also operate.

A drop in overall business and changing shopping patterns prompted the long-time Antioch pharmacist to relocate to Lake Villa. The new store is located at 121 E. Grand Ave. and adjoins Lake Villa IGA.

The building is owned by Edna Dalgaard Barr of Antioch. The food store is owned and operated by Harry Purdom.

"We'll have a smaller store with less overhead which we can operate ourselves," Mendrala noted. Mrs. Mendrala is a registered nurse. They are residents of Twin Lakes, Wis.

Mendrala reported that along with serving his Lake Villa area customers better he was delighted to see so many Antioch area residents relocating their pharmacy needs to the new store.

Polley to talk on TM

James Polley, a Milwaukee businessman/educator and Antioch native, will speak on "Transcendental Meditation and Stress Management," on Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 8 and 9. The free public lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Antioch Township Library, 757 N. Main St., Antioch.

According to Polley, "the Transcendental Meditation (TM) technique is a very simple mental technique that reduces stress and develops creativity. Scientific research that has been conducted at over 100 universities and research institutions (including Harvard, Yale, and UCLA) verifies that the transcendental meditation program reduces high blood pressure, anxiety, depression, cigarette smoking, alcohol consumption, and many other health related problems."

"Recent research on the TM and advanced TM-Sidhi program, even indicates that reversal of aging is a benefit for TM meditators. According to the study published in the International Journal of Neuroscience, (Feb. 82) a person 50 years old who has been practicing the TM technique for over five years would have the physiology of an average 38-year-old," he said.

Polley is a 1970 graduate of Antioch Community High School and a graduate of Coe College in Iowa. He is chairman of the Milwaukee TM Program and co-director of the Lake County/Grayslake TM Program. For more information, please contact: Jim Polley (414) 282-2504.

When I think about it Hah! Now it's our turn!

by GLORIA DAVIS

Just a word of comfort to you parents who are in the thralls of "teenagerism." I know it may seem impossible, but there will come a day, before you are too old and feeble to appreciate it, when you will be able to repay your children for all those memorable hours of pacing and nail biting.

Those wonderful years that start at your kids' age of "doberty," (the day they venture participation in the happenings of the outside world without you at their side) may seem to last 100 years.

In reality they usually only last about nine years per child, give or take a year or so depending on any concurrently running growing pains if your kids are not nine years apart.

Then one day, after a thousand and one "Dare-they-be-in" nights, it's suddenly your turn. Depending, of course, whether or not your offspring remain in the same living vicinity as you and have somehow gained a slight fond feeling for "the old folks."

Then it's your turn to contribute to their gray hair collection.

"Mom, I'll come and pick you up if you want to go shopping at Woodfield, I don't like you driving on all those busy highways," popped out of my thoughtful daughter's mouth on the same day that I noted that the speedometer on my eight-month-old car had already turned to the 20,000 mile category, the result of a slight bit of traveling on "those busy" roads in the pursuit of my weekly paycheck.

Sometime, when you feel particularly fiendish, make a point of arriving late at a planned meeting with one of your kids.

But be prepared for the lecture on, "the least you could have done was call if you were going to be late. I called work and dad three times. I thought you'd had an accident or something."

At times like this it's hard to resist a "so how does it feel," reply.

Why is it, the minute your children grow-up and start the new experience of caring about others, parents turn instantly helpless and senile in their estimation. Do they know about some law that says "kids and parents cannot be mature and capable at the same time?"

A particular example comes to mind. I had been working later than usual, and knowing that my husband had already gone to bed and probably could care less after all the years of crazy newspapers hours, I stopped for a drink with some of the "newsroom guys" without calling home for permission.

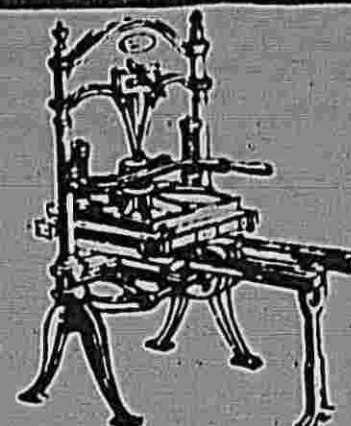

To my surprise, I passed my husband on the highway about two-thirds of the way home.

It seemed that one of my aged children, who happened to be spending the night, woke up to find that it was past midnight and mom-my wasn't home. Forgetting all past sins of omission, this worried babe proceeded to wake my husband and convince him that something dastardly must have happened or else I would have been on the home-hot-line.

I once had a friend that spent her 30-year-old weekends checking up on the "swings" of her widowed mother. My how things change!

But then I guess that children and parents are all alike no matter which generation they belong to. I can remember my 60-year-old mother's admonition, "Say who's the mother here?" when I chided her and my father for disappearing on their own into a questionable part of the French Quarter while we were on vacation together in New Orleans.

And anytime you should be attacked by a few qualms of conscience when you have contributed to your kids' worry lines, chalk the whole thing up to giving them useful practice for a few years from now when their kids reach that awesome age of "doberty."

Along the way with ANNIE MAE

Dan DeFoss tells us that Wingate will be leaving Antioch to attend southern Illinois University at Carbondale for two years so he can earn a degree in education.

Congrats to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Haley on the birth of a bouncing baby boy. Our sources tell us his name is Robert William.

More congratulations are on the agenda, this time they go to Richard Becker on receiving his bachelor of science degree from Illinois State University in Normal.

Hey lovers of Sesame St.! Our spies tell us that one of that program's stars, Roscoe Orman, better known as "Gordon," will be appearing at Lakehurst Mall on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 11 and 12.

Old Annie Mae has no idea how Maxwell St. Days' overall business take was but I really had to fight the crowds on Main and Lake Sts. and in the Antioch Shopping Plaza.

I finally ended up with a t-shirt with Michael Jackson's picture on it. Just what I needed to wear to the Lions' picnic on Sunday. My outfit was a smash, everyone says so, or did they say clash?

Human beings are the only animals that can blush.

Shades of Geraldine Ferraro! It seems to be catching. Chuck Spillner tells me that this month's "Speak-Up" at the Antioch Jaycee meeting will consist of 30 seconds on "Jaycees and Women Membership."

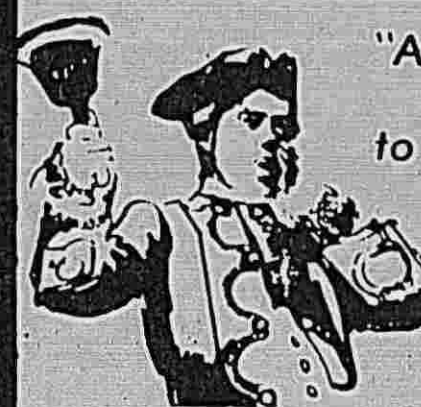

Speaking of the Jaycees, I hear they have a new member Ray Scarpelli.

The Jaycees will be running a Highway Holdup for the Antioch Senior Center on Aug. 17 and 18. Glen Amundsen is spearheading their new membership drive.

New Marriott show something different

by GLORIA DAVIS

If you have, or even if you haven't been to Mann's Chinese Theater in the heart of Hollywood, you'll enjoy the musical trip to that famed film museum offered by the cast of Marriott Lincolnshire Theater's newest production.

"A Day In Hollywood, A Night In The Ukraine" turns out to be a fast-moving and very different theatrical evening.

The show opens in the lobby of Mann's Chinese Theater in the days when it was world-renowned as Grauman's Chinese Theater. Eight extremely talented ushers and usherettes spend the first half of the production treating the audience to a splendid bit of film nostalgia by way of some of the song and dance numbers made famous on the silver screen during the golden age of the film capital, the 1930s.

A waist-high area above the theater's door steals the show as easily recognizable dancing torsos bring such all-time greats as Astair and Rogers, Minnie and Mickey Mouse, etc. to life.

The entire company breezes through songs that run the gamut of the '30s hit parade, from the crazy "Cocktails For Two," to "Somewhere Over The Rainbow," and "Sleepy Time Gal," all done in grand style.

Michael Berkley's piano playing routines as well as Peggy Roeder's saxophone solo to "Good Ship Lollypop" brought the house down.

I'm not a Marx Brothers' fan, but even I enjoyed the second part of the show, a musical comedy segment billed as "the movie that the Marx's Brothers never made."

Gene Weygandt plays Groucho to the hilt, never slipping out of character, no mean feat considering the fast-paced comedy and song-and-dance routines that carry him mercilessly over miles of stage and up and down the furniture.

Roeder gives another socko performance as Mrs. Pavlenko, the corseted snob that appeared in most Marx Brothers epics.

But stealing that part of the show was Berkley, who played Chico as Carlo, the Italian footman.

Berkley's delivery and timing was great and he seemed to have the most and the best of the funny lines.

The energy and exuberance of Linda Leonard, both in the first act's "Sleepy Time Gal" duet and as Harpo, had me completely exhausted.

But I'm still not too sure how I feel about a girl playing Harpo.

Jefferey Lewis and Kevin Sites serve up a great musical background on twin pianos in this fun-filled Marriott offering.

CANKER SORES

Question:

What can be done for canker sores?

Answer:

Both adults and children can get canker sores or aphthous ulcers. Unfortunately, they hurt. They take about 14 days to heal and disappear, if nothing is done for them.

You may be able to diagnose one of these virus-caused sores yourself. If you see a circular, silvery-white center with a red border, and it's painful... that's probably it! You can speed up the healing process to 12 to 24 hours by applying a cotton swab of diluted silver-nitrate solution to the center of the sore and rotating it slowly for a few seconds. This may sting momentarily but it's worth the discomfort, as it cauterizes the base of the ulcer. After swabbing, rinse mouth with water. If the sore doesn't disappear within a day or so, repeat swabbing. Check with your dentist or physician.

County Chamber joins 'excellence' drive

Waukegan/Lake County Chamber of Commerce announced that it will join other chambers, municipalities, and businesses throughout the Chicago metropolitan area in a campaign declaring "Chicagoland as a Center of a Nation of Excellence," said Edgar W. Pigg, chairman of the board of the Chamber.

"The Center of Excellence" campaign, spearheaded by the Chicago Alliance of Business (CABET), is designed to attract new businesses and to encourage expansion of current business enterprises," said John A. Haugabrook, CABET chairman and vice president of Jewel Foods.

By joining the campaign, the Waukegan/Lake County Chamber of Commerce is making a commitment to support the goal of establishing "Chicagoland as the Center of a Nation of Excellence," added Edgar W. Pigg, board chairman.

CABET will host the "Campaign for Excellence," a seminar on Thursday, Aug. 16 at the University of Illinois at Chicago Pavilion, 1140 West Harrison Street, Chicago, 60607. NITC selects Isley

The Northern Illinois Tourism Council (NITC) last month elected to one-year terms its new board of directors, according to NITC Executive Director Gojan Nikolich.

The five officers were elected by voting delegates representing 18 Illinois counties.

NITC, one of four regional non-profit organizations which promote the Illinois travel industry, works closely in its marketing efforts with the Office of Tourism, Illinois Dept. of Commerce and Community Affairs.

"We're excited about working with our new board in the coming months, especially in the light of the recent legislative budget increase for statewide tourism promotion," says Nikolich.

NITC, which helps coordinate a matching grants program administered by the Illinois Office of Tourism, counts among its members over 160 private tourism-related businesses, municipal and county agencies, as well as area hotels, attractions, restaurants, and local community organizations.

"We support fully the efforts of the Illinois Office of Tourism and plan to work closely with that agency in helping lure more travel dollars to our state," says Nikolich.

Elected to the NITC board last month during a special meeting in Mount Carroll were:

Charles C. Isley III, President. (Waukegan-Lake County Chamber)

Marilyn Johnson, first Vice-President. (Galena, Jo Daviess County)

Francis Smith, 2nd Vice-President. (St. Charles, Kane County)

Carla Olson, Treasurer. (Rockford, Winnebago County)

Nancy Newell, Secretary. (Kankakee, Kankakee County)

Positive thinking aids Maxwell St.'s success

by GLORIA DAVIS

With one political party praising the state of the economy and the other disparaging it, there is no doubt about it as far as most of the retailers in Antioch are concerned.

The crowds that swarmed over all the merchandise displayed on Lake, Main and Orchard Sts., during the weekend's Maxwell St. Days sales seemed to attest to its improvement.

According to Don Marski, president of the Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry, sponsors of the promotion, also the manager of the Ben Franklin Family Store, "Sales were fantastic, possibly the best ever!"

"It was like the old days in town again," he added.

Marski said that he had gotten a positive reaction from all the other merchants he had talked to.

Larry Hansen, B. J.'s Men's Store and head of the Chamber's retail committee, said that the crowds and sales were "excellent!"

Jack Siegmeier, owner of Jack's Four Squires echoed their praises of the Chamber promotion, attributing much of the success to better organization and the good weather.

Connie Maynard, manager of the Globe Dept. Store in the Antioch Shopping Plaza agreed that there seem to be more people out shopping for bargains this year, adding that she was very pleased with the sale's results.

Mike White, owner of Tony White's Shoes on Lake St., had his first Maxwell St. Days experience last year just a few weeks before he officially opened his store.

"Our sales have been great, way over last year. I think it's because there seems to be a more positive attitude among the retail committee than when I first came here. The improvement in the economy also helps," he added.

Victory Hospital debuts immediate care center

"To protect its health as well as its pocketbook, the American public will have to learn how to choose from among new, and sometimes confusing, health care options," said Donald Wasson, president of Victory Memorial Hospital in Waukegan, referring to HMO's, freestanding emergency medical centers, one-day surgery and other choices being offered the consumer.

Victory Memorial Hospital's freestanding center, the Victory Immediate Care Center, opening in Gurnee, on Monday, July 9—aids consumer understanding by not using the word "emergency" in its name, Wasson pointed out.

"Our primary function is to give immediate, not emergency care," he explained.

"WE ALSO called the facility an "immediate" care center because we felt that the American Medical Assn.'s objection to the word "emergency" is legitimate. We do not want the public to be confused about when to use the hospital emergency room and when to come to this new center," he went on.

"The center will be treating people who want convenience, attention right away, and high quality and lower cost care," he added.

"Only between five and fifteen percent of the people who show up at hospital emergency rooms have true emergency conditions," notes John Larsen, M.D., medical director of Victory Immediate Care Center and former director of St. Catherine's Hospital's emergency room in Kenosha.

Of the more than 3.7 million people who came to hospital emergency rooms in 1982, the second most common reason for their visit was the common cold.

SO, DR. LARSEN urges the public to learn to make proper use of the increasingly common freestanding centers.

"They are alternatives to the hospital emergency room for earaches, sore throats, flu, cuts (including those that need stitches), eye abrasions, insect and animal bites, sprains, possible fractures and similar non-life threatening illnesses and injuries." Bruce Flashner, M.D., the pioneer in establishing such facilities says the rule of thumb for using his center is "I know I am not going to die from this."

"Although Victory Immediate Care Center is equipped to intervene in cases of life threatening emergencies and Dr. Larsen is a specialist in emergency medicine, we do not wish to attract genuine emergency cases," maintains Barbara Ramsey, RN director of the center and former staff nurse in Victory Hospital's emergency room.

"They belong in our emergency room," she added.

"Why should others who do not need emergency services pay the minimum $50 to $90 which hospital emergency rooms charge, when a facility like the Victory Immediate Care Center charges $30?" she asks.

"WITH THE soaring cost of health care in this country, consumers are being asked to assume greater responsibility for selecting more cost effective care. Charges at a freestanding center are lower," Dr. Larsen notes, "because the overhead is lower than at an emergency room."

The Victory Immediate Care Center will be open from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m. every day of the year.

It will not be open during the typical hospital third shift when volume of patients is low and the costs of running it are high. The lower overhead is being passed on to the user of the center.

The appeal for many consumers of this type of facility is not cost, but accessibility. No appointments are ever necessary and patients need not spend the long hours typical of an emergency room visit for non-emergency treatment.

"MOST PEOPLE show up at an immediate care center because they want to see a physician right away. They do not want to spend a restless night uncomfortable or worrying; they do not want to take time off from work; they may not have their own physician, or they may not be able to get a doctor's appointment right away," Dr. Larsen observes.

The accessibility may also be a medical advantage in some instances.

Ramsey gives an example: "People experiencing chest pains often go through two to three hours of denial before they go to a hospital emergency room," she says, drawing on her 11 years of experience on hospital emergency room staffs.

"The idea of going to a hospital and being admitted is threatening, so they delay. They might come into a facility like an immediate care center sooner," she added.

The centers also serve as entry points into the medical system for people without health care," Dr. Larsen continues, "for newcomers to a community, people in a town for meetings, conventions, vacations. And they serve as telephone information centers."

"The cat scratched me, what should I do? I burned my finger, what should I do? or they call in case of a Tylenol or botulism scare—just as they would the hospital emergency room. The centers also are good resources for industry for worker illness or injury on the job," he concludes.

Some freestanding emergency centers in the U.S. report that they have become substitutes for the family or primary physician.

At the Victory Immediate Care Center, the staff will urge its patients to affiliate with a primary care physician.

"Physicians I have worked with at Victory know their patients' histories off the tops of their heads," observes Ramsey.

"Good primary care like that is best," she added.

So, the Victory Immediate Care Center staff will telephone patients the day after they are treated at the center, just as do most emergency care centers, but they will not leave it at that. Giving episodic alone will not be enough.

Instead, they will refer as many patients as possible to primary care physicians.

"Thus, says Ramsey, "our care will combine the best of the old and the best of the new."

Health department explains toxic law

A new law, the Illinois Toxic Substances Disclosure Act, gives Illinois employees the right to information about the toxic substances in their workplace.

The law states that employers must:

Post a notice of employees rights under the law.

MAKE AVAILABLE to employees, within 10 days of a written request, copies of a report ("Material Safety Data Sheet") for each toxic substance to which employees may be exposed.
